

I oppose the weakening of Indiana's telemarketing law by the CBA. To contact current banking customers is one thing. They are customers, and therefore is not considered telemarketing. To contact past customers with offers is clearly a telemarketing call, and a violation of the law, which was instituted to stop such annoyances.